

Environmental Arts

The grounds at The Old Rectory are ideal for environmental arts, whether making something permanent for the garden or hosting workshops that use the space to inspire art reflecting the natural world.

From tree dressing to pond dipping, from garden design to concrete sculptures, the grounds of The Old Rectory have seen many projects and events that combined the arts with the environment.

The Maid of Milton Keynes – a large construction with flowers for hair - was created by Jessica Rost and local young people.

The Cultural Garden project created a formal area of hard and soft landscaping, which was launched with a variety show in 2002.
