

Some pictures of buildings in the town.

81, High Street during the 1950's. The town Vicarage from 1875-1983.

The premises owned by the Co-op at 13, St John Street were demolished in 1958.
Formerly the Marquis of Granby then the Three Cranes.

St John Street during the demolition of 1958.
The large white building at the time was the Electra cinema.
The old fire insurance also insured the property to the left.
The cinema is now the Tickford Arcade.

Some pictures of buildings in the town.

Knibb's old premises at 26, High Street later Wagstaff's Antique shop.
The photo shows Florrie Wagstaff during the 1950's.
The old house is now demolished.

Saxby's house later a public house.
Details are in the society publication "One More for the Road"

27, Priory Street c1895. Formerly a farmhouse, a beer house called the Chimney Sweeps Arms, a bus depot and now a private house.

Some pictures of buildings in the town.

This drawing of 1820 show the premises on the opposite side of the Iron Bridge.

The property this side on the left is Bridge House.

The premises were originally a fellmongers yard and tannery in the occupation of the Yates family.

This picture shows the cart Newman Cole Bakers delivering the newly baked bread.

Mayne's Free Church originally built in 1856 as the Chapel of the United Brothers later owned and run by the Oddfellows Society of Manchester. In 1993 it was purchased by the Newport Pagnell Historical Society as their headquarters and renamed Chandos Hall.

The man in the picture is Don Hurst, our Archivist/Historian

Some pictures of buildings in the town.

This building, once the Royal British Legion Club formerly the local Library and Doctors Surgery.
Now a Social Club.

Once two private house we believe this to be the site of a Manor House called Waterhall.

This old photograph taken in 1910 show the construction of the houses of Greenfield Road.
The scaffolding shows the building taking place the “even” side already built.

This picture shows Worsley's Café and Sweetshop at 2, High Street shortly before demolition in 1971.

Some pictures of buildings in the town.

The photo shows the Manse centrally near the lamp-post.
The Congregational Church now called the United Reformed Church is through the archway.

The old Baptist Chapel now the site of a Chinese Restaurant in the High Street.
In 1929 the bodies from the little graveyard at the back of the Chapel were reburied in cemetery in Tickford Street.